This below ground parking garage at One Financial Center in the heart of Boston's financial district was in need of a new deck coating system. Rose Associates Corporation was interested in the new EnviroLastic polyurea deck coating system because of its quick turn around to traffic.

Corrosion Probe, Inc., an engineering firm based in Connecticut, worked with Rose Associates to devise a specification to remove the old existing membrane and apply the EnviroLastic system.

The General Contractor, N.E.R. Construction, removed the existing coating and prepared the concrete for the application of EnviroLastic. Jean's Waterproofing, an approved EnviroLastic applicator worked in conjunction with Corrosion Probe and Rose Associates to apply the new deck coating.

The project was completed over the Memorial Day weekend shutdown, causing no parking problems for the building tenants and customers.
